I am in support of satellite broadcast stations being able to carry local information. Although I don't currently have satellite radio, I do have satellite television. Being in a mountainous, rural area, satellite broadcast is the only way to receive a good quality broadcast of information at a reasonable price. I dealt with the poor quality, poor service, constantly declining programming and constantly rising prices of cable and will never support that again. I hope to have a satellite radio in my next new vehicle and I wish to have complete access to any programming possibilities that are available.

Sincerely,
